Personals.

THE BOTFOM RAIL IS ON FOP NOW, and our Giant is not blind! He asks no guide to lay his hand on the props of the State, nor need he bow himself upon the common piliars to avenge his particular wrong. His eyes have been opened by free education, and his strength crowned by a free ballot. He is by no means led in captivity by his ignorance, or set up in our midst as a laughing stock, or chained to grind in our mill. For he is master now. Ho looks abroad with the tranquil smile of conscious strength, and paralyzes the nation at his will. Since fateful Runnymede our race has vaunted its liberties under the shield of a sworn jury, but that sacred jury has degenerated into the mere tool of dexierous barrators, who rule our awakened Giant by appeals to his generous sympathies or by recklessly inflaming the bitterness of his class hatreds. The ever-swelling broad of fleeting petitiogers who take to this trade have established their theory that mere isolation is a proof of malice; and on that assumption, with windy fury and tradesunion eloquence, they base their ruinous damage suits. Their standardery is: "Smite him on the pocket nervel—reduce him to the ranksiand see how his haughtiness will shrivel at your touch!" Under these conditions we find that penury is the loftlest virtue, while an appearance of opulence may be safely taken as the sign of an oppressor whom it will be meritorious and profitable to bleed. Confiscation under a perversion of law naturally follows. The victum shrinks from threatened ruin by accepting a promised settlement out of court, and the shyster pockets his half of whatever the spoil may be pretty fairly measured by his neediness, his shamelessness and his greed. Our New Virginia is big with a fruitage of this unspeakable corauption, and a black night approaches when it will be proper for brave men to tremble.

Your respectfully, half in sorrow, half in sorn, a foreigner who, during fifty years, has witnessed the decay of successive Confederate ideals.
